Success begins before the job fair (Part 2)

Last week, we learned that your chances of landing a job from the fair depends on how much preparation you make before the fair. We learned about having a positive mindset, knowing yourself and researching about the companies you want to work for. Here's a specific way how to learn about those companies, which will cause you to stand out from other job hunters who simply ask the recruiter, "Ummm … what do you do here?"

[illegible]

Scan the company's website

Then, send an application letter to that person. [illegible] "Dear Human Resource Director." [illegible]

Most importantly you should figure out from a company's website what qualities and skills it values most in their employees. Then, present yourself as that kind of person.

Strategies and principles

Don't be like a ship drifting aimlessly across a vast ocean. Have a plan of attack for the fair. [illegible]

Another advantage [illegible]

Some advise that you visit the low-priority companies first [illegible]

A brief 'sales pitch' of yourself

Imagine that you are in an elevator with a highly sought after recruiter. [illegible] "elevator speech," [illegible]

The 'pitch' should be brief, [illegible] about the following:

- your name
- your education [illegible]
- your goals
- your qualifications - strengths, skills or experience
- [illegible]
- the position in that organization you are interested in
- what you can offer to his organization

For example, when you meet the recruiter, smile, give him a firm handshake and say something like, [illegible]

You will notice that the pitch integrates both your qualifications and your research about the company. [illegible]

Summer is more fun in the Philippines with Chowking Halo-Halo

[illegible] Chowking Halo-Halo [illegible]

Truly a summer treat, the halo-halo has long claimed the title as one of the Philippines' most-loved tropical treats. With its assortment of colorful and deliciously sweet delights piled high on a mound of crushed ice, [illegible] ice cream, the halo-halo is pure heaven [illegible] — especially as temperatures are rising.

The Philippines' No. 1 Chinese fast-food chain, Chowking has, for years, been beloved by millions of diners [illegible] and its own brand of halo-halo has, for decades, captured the hearts, tastes and appetites of Filipinos.

And why not? In true Chowking food fashion, its halo-halo is served with no less than 11 [illegible] ingredients, crowned by the finest ice cream by Nestlé — a royal dessert [illegible] of the day.

With thirst-quenching nata de coco, chewy red sago, refreshing pandan jelly, rustic sweet banana in banana syrup, caramelized langka in langka syrup, irresistible sweet bean mix, golden-roasted pinipig, the leche flan and ube [illegible] generously topped by heaping scoops of Nestlé ice cream [illegible] crushed ice, and a shower of Chowking's creamy milk mix, the Chowking Halo-Halo is a festive, flavorful and fun treat that bursts with all the goodness of the summer season.

Yet the Chowking Halo-Halo is more than a seasonal pleasure — it's available anytime, rain or shine, for those with a sweet, icy craving. [illegible] a refreshing nightcap, enjoy it when it's hot or enjoy it when it's cold. The Chowking Halo-Halo is a whole-year "summer" treat.

So head to your nearest Chowking store and have a taste of summer! With the country's No. 1 best-tasting halo-halo delicacy, summer is truly more fun in the Philippines!

How to enjoy summer, rain or shine

Kim Chiu

During summer, when the temperatures go up, and our holiday fashions get traded for flip-flops, colorful [illegible], we all know, clear as the sun, that summer has officially begun. So we grab the sunblock, sunglasses and [illegible] sea, sand, and surf-loving activities. In some vacations, tourist destinations and various summer hot spots. [illegible] summer sports, like beach volleyball and wakeboarding. Kimmie Chiu [illegible] star Kim Chiu adds: "Summer is a time to be with [illegible] my family. Since it gives [illegible] time, we can travel [illegible] because we love [illegible]."

SOME RAINY SUMMERS

It is a surprise to many, however, that these summer days may not always be scorching hot for us to enjoy all the usual summer activities. Especially with the La Niña phenomenon hitting the Philippines, rain [illegible] of the least anticipated times, including summer. An unexpected [illegible] rain can alter our plans even at the height of summer, leaving most of us craving that familiar feeling of summer.

But not to worry, every Filipino can still enjoy the feeling of summer, rain or shine, because every Filipino can enjoy the taste of summer with the perfect halo-halo: that sound of crushing ice, the colorful sights of sago, jelly and ube melting in one superbly sweet and refreshingly cold concoction — it is truly heaven on earth, and with good reason, it is hailed as one of the best summer treats in the Philippines.

CHOWKING HALO-HALO: FILIPINO SUMMER FAVORITE

"Summer is not complete without having a cold treat on a summer's day. That cold treat is nothing else but the delicious Chowking Halo-Halo," says Richard Yap. Richard is now more popularly known as Chen [illegible] the highly popular Chinoy [illegible] and [illegible] good looks and [illegible], the new TV star admits to having a very big appetite for sweets.

And while he constantly craves the icy and [illegible] that halo-halo brings, Richard doesn't settle for your neighborhood [illegible] variety. He wants his halo-halo to [illegible], and knows only one place for it: Chowking. "The taste of the [illegible] [illegible] that literally melts in your mouth and the combination of all the ingredients such as the ube halaya and the ice cream makes for a heavenly cold treat that is so refreshing on a summer day."

With no less than 11 scrumptious delicacies and treats topped with leche flan, ube [illegible] and premium ice cream, Chowking proudly [illegible] the halo-halo we once loved as a refreshingly royal treat.

With flavor-bursting nata de coco, chewy red sago, refreshing pandan jelly, rustic sweet banana in banana syrup, caramelized langka in langka syrup, irresistible sweet bean mix, golden-roasted pinipig, the luscious leche flan and ube [illegible] generously topped by heaping scoops of Nestlé ice cream in ube or [illegible], crushed ice, and a shower of Chowking's creamy milk mix, the Chowking Halo-Halo is bursting with [illegible] that one can enjoy [illegible], a sweet ending to a meal, or a fun-cool nightcap. With all these ingredients in one treat, it is no surprise how Chowking's Halo-Halo cemented its position as the No. 1 best-tasting halo-halo in the country.

"I love the toppings, especially the ube and leche flan!" reveals Kim. Kim is a [illegible] and fashion ambassador to millions of Filipino teens. She's landed on many magazine covers, TV ads and highly acclaimed soaps and movies and, despite a healthy regimen, she appreciates a sweet treat such as Chowking's Halo-Halo.

So have fun this summer, starting with what you eat. If it's cool, colorful, creamy and completely fulfilling, it's got to be the ultimate summer treat: Chowking Halo-Halo! Served every day the whole day, anywhere in the Philippines, the fun and flavorful memories of summer can be had by us Filipinos, come rain or shine!

Knowing God

Jesus answered: "Don't you know me, Philip, even after I have been among you such a long time? Anyone who has seen me has seen the Father..."
John 14:9

Trouble and difficulty are catalysts that force you to seek God. When troublesome words such as, "I want out of this marriage," or "I am sorry to tell you this, but the laboratory report says that your problem will require surgery" cause your home and dreams to collapse, you need God.

Whether God allows the circumstances to drive you to Himself or simply uses them isn't important. Man's extremity is God's opportunity. He's there to meet you in the dark night of your soul.

When Job's world fell apart piece by piece, his friends came to console him. One of them advised, "Submit to God and be at peace with him; in this way prosperity will come to you" (Job 22:21).

In other words, he says, "Job, get to know God and your troubles will be over. You will then have peace." But Job did know God, far better than those who wanted to explain why his world had fallen apart.

God is there in the dark night, but He is also there when the sun rises the next morning. Knowing God, however, is the most important thing you can ever experience.

Is your relationship with Him strong enough that when the clouds obscure the sun and your peace is threatened, your faith in Him will be an anchor, a strength that will hold you?

In times of trial, He is the only one really worth knowing, the only One who will walk with you through the valley of the shadow of death and take you up the other side.

He has shown his people the power of his works, giving them the lands of other nations. The works of his hands are faithful and just; all his precepts are trustworthy. They are steadfast for ever and ever, done in faithfulness and uprightness. He provided redemption for his people; he ordained his covenant for ever – holy and awesome is his name. The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom; all who follow his precepts have good understanding. To him belongs eternal praise.

Psalm 111:6-10

the 'boat' to success

By Helen M. Flores

BELIEVING THAT EDUCATION IS THE MOST POWERFUL TOOL TO FIGHT poverty, 30-year-old Jay Michael Jaboneta left a good job in the government to put up a foundation that helps poor children in far-flung areas in Mindanao have access to education.

Jay, JM or JMJ to family and friends, left his job as the first New Media Head of the Office of the Press Secretary (OPS), now called the Presidential Communications Operations Office, in 2011 to work for the Yellow Boat Project, also known as the Philippine Funds for Little Kids that helped hundreds of young students who literally swim their way to school in Zamboanga City acquire a boat.

Jay learned of the story of the schoolchildren who had to swim to go to school during a speaking engagement in Zamboanga City in October 2010.

"It was during my time there (Social Media in Nation Building forum) that I found out about the story of the swimming children in Zamboanga City and eventually left my job in Malacañang to focus on the Yellow Boat Project, or what is also known as the Philippine Funds for Little Kids," Jay tells STARweek.

every school day to Talon-Talon Elementary School in Zamboanga City.

"For Laying-Laying, it's 3 kilometers of walking. Combining, Bonsai often had a kilometers of walking to the Talon-Talon Elementary School, so 3.5 km all in all. But that's just one way. In the afternoon, it's 3.5 km of walking through mud during low tide," Jay explains.

"The story really touched me. It tugged at my heart. Upon coming back to Manila, I couldn't shake it off and I remember posting it on my social media accounts, particularly Facebook, and even texting some friends," says Jay, who hails from Cotabato City.

"I wanted to know what we could do about it. I know how important education is, look at where it brought me. I thought to myself that something must be done," he adds.

One of Jay's friends, marketing guru Jonah Go, helped him start a fund-raising campaign to buy the children a boat.

"Within one week, we had P70,000, which we thought was enough to buy a boat," Jay says.

"I called another volunteer and my co-founder, Anton Lim, and told him we have some money to buy a boat for the kids. We realized we couldn't buy one since they live in the mangrove area and it needed to be customized with a flat bottom, so we decided to build one," he says.

The Department of Environment and Natural Resources (DENR) donated three confiscated logs to the group, says Jay.

They also received help from the local business community in Zamboanga through the Rotary Club of Zamboanga and Tzu Chi Foundation to raise more funds.

Jay says the Yellow Boat Project started from a Facebook wall status on May 1, 2010.

"It was a mini fundraising campaign that gave birth to the organization," according to Jay.

The group is set to formally launch the foundation [illegible] this year.

Since November 2010, Jay says the organization has helped three communities: Laying-Laying, Brgy. Talon-Talon, Zamboanga City; Lakewood, Zamboanga del Sur; and Isla Mababoy, Brgy. [illegible], Masbate.

Aside from the Zamboanga kids, they also help the school children of Isla Mababoy in Barangay [illegible], Masbate who also swim to go to school.

"For Isla Mababoy, it is a 300-meter swim (around 20-30 minutes) from the island of Mababoy to the main island of Masbate. This is the one that was featured on CNN World View," he shares.

The organization is currently building a halfway house in Lakewood, Zamboanga del Sur, a community and literacy center in Laying-Laying, and a school in Mababoy.

Young Global Shapers

Jay, along with eight other young Filipino achievers, was recently named as one of the 2013 Young Global Shapers of the Geneva-based World Economic Forum (WEF).

"Being recognized by an institution like the World Economic Forum, it will provide more pressure to continue these projects and also to scale it up," Jay says.

[illegible]

[illegible]

The other Young Global Shapers are Mayor Maria Carmela Alvarez of San Vicente in Palawan, environmentalist Anna Rosario Oposa, Pierre Daniel Buenaventura, Bryan Albert Lim, Eleanor Rosa Pinugu, Mikhael Ople, television host Bianca Gonzalez, and Alexandra Amanda Eduque.

"As a Young Global Shaper, my responsibility is to mentor and hopefully develop future young leaders. It's also about sharing best practices not only from within the Manila hub but also from other hubs around the world," he says.

"It will expose me to other young individuals from around the world who are tackling problems they are facing and how they are solving it. And hopefully these are projects we can replicate in the country," Jay adds.

In 2011, the WEF launched the Global Shapers community aimed at providing the youth with a global platform to shape the future – integrating personal, community and global dimensions. The community will help youth develop their leadership potential to serve society.

"The Global Shapers community includes extraordinary young individuals with great potential for future leadership roles in society. Aged between 20 and 30 years, they come from all walks of life and share a spirit of entrepreneurship in the global public interest," the WEF said.

'Pay it forward'

"It made me realize that little things can really make a difference. One simple Facebook status gave birth to an organization, and allowed our group to touch more lives and inspire other people and organizations," Jay says.

"We hope to seek more communities where children struggle to go to school," he says.

The organization also plans to provide livelihood opportunities related to seaweed farming to the communities so they will become an empowered community.

"I'm hoping the 11 college scholars we have in Zamboanga City will one day pay it forward," Jay says.

"I plan to continue sharing the story with more individuals and organizations. We really plan to build a social enterprise out of all these activities so that it will fund itself. I plan to develop more leaders as well. I believe that success without succession is a failure," Jay points out.

Last year, Jay was named as one of the "7 Modern-Day Filipino Heroes" by Yahoo! Southeast Asia editors for his involvement in the project Philippine Funds for Little Kids.

"Health Support has been very useful during my dad's sickness. 3 months before he passed away, we have been supported by Philippine Prudential Life without hesitation even though we filed claims every month that Dad was in the hospital.

In those times of hardship, emotionally and financially, Philippine Prudential Life was a lot of help."

A gustatory weekend getaway in Baguio

Text and photos by Edu Jarque

THERE WAS ABSOLUTELY NO DOUBT THAT it was simply "the most prestigious culinary showdown in Northern Luzon." The sheer number of participants was, to use a requisite food-related idiom, proof of the pudding. Over 60 academic institutions and travel, tourism and hospitality establishments from the North joined the 8th Annual Hotel, Restaurant and Tourism (HRT) Weekend not too long ago.

Excellently organized by the Hotel and Restaurant Association of Baguio (HRAB), the opening event held at the centrally located Atrium, SM City Baguio, began with the customary parade of participants, a ribbon-cutting and blessing program and the awarding of the winners of the "HRAB Got Talent" show. But the highlight was a cooking demonstration by popular television host and chef [illegible], who quickly charmed and inspired the public.

This three-day affair brought together members of the culinary, tourism and hospitality industries from all over the islands, in a series of "standing room only" seminars, where experts from different fields shared with practitioners practical lessons, from the most basic to the specialized; well-attended [illegible] that featured a wide range of [illegible] for both the neophyte and the seasoned; trade fairs and displays that showcased a myriad of materials and innovations taking hold of the field; and competitions of skills in both the professional and students division. And it was really the contest that provided the most of these extraordinary delights.

It needed a dedicated roster of close to 70 judges to select and proclaim the best of the best in countless categories of expertise that ranged from plating vegetables to preparing a [illegible] in cold meat, from designing the floral banquet centerpiece to complicated ice carvings.

In no way could the quality of any of the contestants' performances be compromised, at least not under the watchful eye – and even tongue – of Myrna Segismundo, managing director of Restaurant 9501 and the chairman of the HRT panel of judges. Joining her in this awesome task, to name a few, were general manager of Century Park Hotel Philippe Barthelemy, director for Culinary Arts at [illegible] Norbert Gandler, CEO of [illegible], corporate chef of Discovery Shores [illegible], [illegible] and executive chef of [illegible], Sala restaurant chef [illegible] Colin Mackay, Le Bistro Vert executive chef [illegible], [illegible] restaurant proprietor [illegible], owner of [illegible], [illegible] restaurant chef [illegible], owner of Café Uno [illegible], [illegible], US Culinary Theatre [illegible], editor of Country Cooking Magazine [illegible], operations manager of Restaurant 9501 [illegible], editor of [illegible] Cebu [illegible] and Claude Tayag, our fellow columnist at The Philippine STAR. There was also myself who did not miss the delicious fray.

motivate both students and professionals in the hotel and restaurant activity, the competitions likewise served as an avenue to align the skills of the hospitality industry in Baguio City with the rest of the country" through its partnership with ABS-CBN's National Food Showdown (NFS) where winners of the well-received Baguio Chef Wars were to further battle it out and represent the region in the Grand National Chef Wars Final in [illegible] Metro Manila.

The weekend boasted of two other highlights – the Coronation Night of Mr. and Miss HRAB whose students vied for the titles at the Baguio Convention Center, and the unveiling of the rice festival known as Rice and Shine, which also involved a lot of delicious tasting again at the Atrium of SM City Baguio.

Conceived as a fitting tribute to Filipino farmers, the Rice and Shine Festival not only honored the revered place of rice in the Filipino palate and life, but also focused on the diverse ways by which this prime Filipino staple is to be prepared, celebrated and enjoyed.

Rice was in its full glory as leading hotels and restaurants of Baguio and HRAB members collaborated and cooked several rice concoctions in a spectacular oversized pan 29 feet in diameter. It contained approximately 500 kilograms of varied renditions, from popular ones like [illegible] fried rice to local specialties such as [illegible] fried rice served with crispy [illegible]. This feat produced some 8,000 servings – free for all who came for the festivities.

HRAB president and general manager of the Baguio Country Club, stressed that the featured rice "is not only a staple served in combination with other dishes but a complete and sumptuous meal in itself, on its own." What a truly fitting way to close the weekend of gustatory delights.

Certainly the eighth celebration of the annual Hotel, Restaurant and Tourism Weekend was a cultural feast to reckon with. And the reckoning was a carried out by [illegible] that were not only eager to be in jubilation but likewise by humans, which despite their [illegible], still yearned for more.

Change for the better

WHEN ASKED ABOUT environmental issues, youth advocate Arnel Alipao replies, "It is essential to involve youth and children."

A speaker at the 2nd Asian Children's Museum Conference hosted by Museo Pambata last month, Arnel's thought echoes that of many other speakers who discussed an overview on environment-related products and technology, new ways of teaching children about conserving nature, children's literature that takes up environmental issues, and more.

The conference, which tackled the theme "Children And Climate Change," highlighted the fact that children are greatly affected by environmental problems – perhaps the most affected since it will be their generation that will have to deal with the effects of climate change.

The distinguished speakers at the conference included Dr. Amy Bruder, director of Teacher and Youth Education of the California Academy of Sciences; [illegible], project manager of a touring interactive exhibition on climate change called FORWARD; Dr. Lilibeth La O, director/curator of Museo Sang Bata sa Negros; writer Carla Pacis; Jose Ma. Lorenzo Tan, CEO and vice chairman of the board of trustees of WWF Philippines; and Dr. Thomas van der Walt of the Department of Information Science of the University of South Africa, among other guest speakers and panelists.

Arnel, who gave the UNICEF report on children and climate change on the first day of the conference, is well aware of the effects of climate change and has experienced dealing with natural disasters at an early age.

"Way back in high school, I used to cross some point in the provincial road which, during lengthy rains, is overrun by strong currents due to flash floods that make the way impassable," he recalls of his experience growing up in Surigao del Norte.

"No one is exempted when calamity strikes. Young or old, rich or poor, we are all vulnerable to any disaster," he says.

[illegible]

[illegible]

Early on, Arnel realized the importance of taking care of the environment because of the negative effects of climate change. "It's the irregularity of the climate which brings seasonal storms, then the floods that follow on and on in our place submerging the common sources of our livelihood. We usually go hungry since we are relying on the root crops and rice fields for livelihood."

A youth advocate for Disaster Risk Reduction (DRR), Arnel has traveled to many places to talk about his advocacy.

"As a DRR youth advocate, I participate actively and encourage my peers in the community to take collective actions by planting trees, regular clean-up drives, and by building a strong partnership with the elders in the community and other stakeholders through conversations regarding the current issues prevalent to the communi

Twin Giants of Industry Celebrate

There were valid reasons for a grand celebration at the Shangri-la ballroom: twins Jose Jr. and Raul Concepcion were marking their 80th birthday as grand industrialists, business entrepreneurs and civic leaders who have immensely improved the country's economy, given jobs to thousands, [illegible] nationalism in civic affairs and set a striking example of family solidarity in an era of shocking betrayals of marital vows.

[illegible]

Each guest was gifted with twin books: "Joecon's Journey – Our Father and His Remarkable Legacy" by Joey Concepcion and "... In pursuit of excellence/ The Odyssey of Raul T. Concepcion" by Raul's wife Minnelou, with Joanne Rae Ramirez as co-author.

Jaime Zobel de Ayala's eloquent foreword reveals Joe's recipe for success. Here's an excerpt: "Joe is a staunch believer in everything good in the Filipino." Minnelou's title "in pursuit of excellence" sums it all for Ronnie as does Joecon's "The Man Who Gave a Damn".

Minnelou, daughter of Don Antonio de las Alas, and Joecon's wife Marlou, daughter of Don Salvador Araneta, as well as children and grandchildren of the twins delivered loving, nostalgic memories of them.

The menu card, which offered the ultimate in gourmet fare, also read: "Pangako: Two Lives Well Lived ... The Promise Fulfilled." [illegible] Outstanding entertainers were Ferdinand Lo, Felix Rivera, Jose Mari Chan, Menchu Yulo, Andre Concepcion and a vocal group. I saw Santanina Rasul, Randy and Cecile Limjoco, Vicky Zubiri, Father Villari and Mely Hechanova in the vast crowd. At my table were Fortune Ledesma, Evie Costa, Al and Nena [illegible], Jun and Nene Lozano.
